MARKET OVERVIEW - July 2024

- Australia's share market made history in July closing above eight thousand points for the first time buoyed by hopes that the US is on the verge of cutting interest rates.
- Seasonally, July is one of the best months of year for Australian equity returns, and July continued that trend returning +4.2% for the month and +13.4% for the year.
- Towards the end of the month weaker than expected Australian inflation numbers (0.8% trimmed mean q-o-q) removed the risk of a near term interest rate hike. Expectations the next move will be down in the first half of CY2025.
- Australia's bond market is currently only pricing a 16% chance that the RBA will lift interest rates to 4.6% in August.
- Australian unemployment rate increased slightly from 4.0% to 4.1% and future indicators point to upward trend.
- The shift in the expected timing of interest rate change weighed on the AUD/USD which fell 1.9% to 65.41c.
- Australian house prices continued to rise unevenly across Australia. Nationally, house prices rose by +0.5% m/m or +7.9% y/y. Perth prices were the strongest out of the capital cities in July, up +0.5% m/m or +7.9% y/y.
- Australian building approvals fell in June (-6.5% m/m) and remain at an exceptionally low level.
- Biden was withdrawing in favour of Kamala Harris, and whether Jerome Powell, Fed Chair would hint when US rate cuts from current 5.5% would start to fall, given US inflation fell to 3%.
- The US market is now pricing in five interest rate cuts in the US over the next 12 months commencing in September.
- The broad global equity market returned +4.1%, but the smaller company version was even higher, returning +9.3%.
- Against the backdrop of potential falling rates, interest sensitive assets outperformed growth and large cap equity indices.
- European Central Banks left rates unchanged. European inflation unexpectedly rose in July to 2.6%.
- Commodities broadly fell but precious metals rose. Steel making commodities suffered as prices fell -8%, impacted by soft Chinese property data and high Chinese (iron ore) port stocks.
